

Dear Colleagues and Friends:

Exactly one year ago, The Ethics Lab project was launched at www.theethicslab.com.

I'm very pleased to report that, since then, more than 15,000 CILECT members have registered over 62,000 hits on the many pages of the website.

Though it is difficult to evaluate the meaning of "success" in that area of activity, a commonsense reading of this data nonetheless indicates that, as a community, we have all responded warmly (and generously) to the presence of this project in our academic and professional lives.

First, this is a wonderful opportunity to once again thank CILECT's past president, Maria Dora, current president Bruce Sheridan, Executive director Stanislav Semerdjiev, and, of course, all heads of regions and members of the EC. Most of all, I would like to thank all those who have made the Ethics Lab part of their work as teachers.

Further, I would like to affirm that our journey has just begun. Bolstered by your strong support, I hope to continue our work in paving new avenues of creative ethical work that will nurture a love for ethics in the hearts and minds of our students.

I am pleased to announce the recent uploading of the testimonies of 19 colleagues, which are now available for your viewing at <https://theethicslab.com/?institution=vgik>. These testimonies were collected at the 2019 Moscow Congress. That 3-day recording session was the first step in a project designed to create a chronological ethical portrait of the attendees of CILECT's congresses. You are invited to encourage your students to listen to them.

For those of you who have faced technical/formal difficulties in logging in to the website, we have arranged a special, secure password.

Please insert the two passwords below in: <https://theethicslab.com/login/> under the "Guest Login" tab, which appears on the right-hand side of the page:

Again, do not hesitate to reach out to me with whatever idea or query you may have. I look forward to our conversation: dangeva64@gmail.com

Yours,

Dan
